Storms on the Sun.
 The velocity with which solar storms move is very great, and they sometimes extend over a space several times as large as the whole of the earth's surface. In common parlance they are called "sun spots," but as they are known to have a rotary motion exactly similar to terrestrial cyclones they may be regarded as true solar storms. It has been computed by eminent astronomers that these sun storms move with the astonishing velocity of 120 miles per second, and we can best form an adequate conception of what the force of such a storm must be by comparing it to an earth storm moving at 100 miles an hour, which is indeed a terrible hurricane. Carlington and Hodgson, the English astronomers, describe a sun storm which traveled 35,000 miles in five minutes, and in 1871 Professor Young of Cincinnati witnessed one that traveled 166 miles per second for 45 minutes and constantly throw sheets of flame and fiery matter to a height of not less than 200,000 miles above the sun's disturbed surface.—St. Louis Republic.

Double Flowers.
 Nearly all the double flowers of gardens were first found wild. Double buttercups, double pinks, double daisies, double roses and many other things were first discovered among their wild fellows and introduced into the gardens. The florist, however, can produce double flowers. He watches this tendency in nature. If a flower usually has five petals, and he discovers that some of the stamens have somewhat of a petal-like character, the pollen is taken from these flowers and others in a similar condition fertilized with this pollen. The tendency, once started, is then given to the progeny. Almost any species of plant will in this way be capable of producing double flowers. It is surprising that, with this knowledge, more attempts at this line of improvement in ordinary garden flowers are not made.—Meehan's Monthly.

Made Him Tired.
 A Texas congressman is thinking of resigning because he is kept so busy by his friends in Texas urging upon the administration the necessity of appointing them to foreign missions. He reminds one of the 4-year-old child saying her prayers at her mother's knee. Having concluded, as usual, with "God bless papa and mamma, grandpa and grandmamma, uncles and aunts," etc., she gave a great sigh and said: "Oh, mamma, dear, I do wish those people would pray for themselves, for I'm tired of praying for them."—Texas Siftings.

Why Is It?
 Here is a question in naval science which is to the average sailor man a riddle: solved. Take a vessel of, say, 2,500 tons, place on it a cargo of 3,500 tons. This gives you a total of 6,000 tons. Hitch a line tug to this vessel, and she will sink the big craft along at the rate of 10 or 12 knots an hour. Now put the tug's machinery in the big vessel. It won't move her half a knot an hour. Why is this?—New York Mail and Express.

THE CABLE SPOOK.
 An Uncanny Thing Bristles the Slot Before Chicago Street Cars.

Whether it is a spook or not, it is bothering the brains of the west side cable car conductors and gripmen and is causing all kinds of guesses on the part of the passengers who travel nightly on the Milwaukee avenue and Madison street cable cars.

It looks like a wolf, but it may be an ordinary dog—that is ordinary in all respects save in appearance.

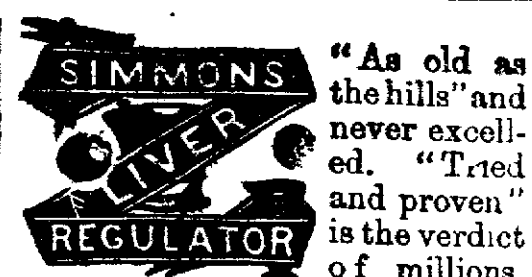

Two members of the University club were sauntering along Washington street, between Dearborn and Clark streets, a week ago last night. A west bound Madison street cable car was standing opposite the Title and Trust building. The gripman looked as if he was in a trance. The conductor was helpless and evidently speechless. In the center of the street stood something that looked like a wolf. It was not howling and was not wild looking. It was simply standing over the cable slot in what, in the case of a man, would have been called a reflective mood.

Some of the women on the front seats jumped off. When they saw how mild and harmless the object over the slot looked, they returned to their seats. The conductor at last regained his courage and tagged twice at the bellrope. The gripman obeyed, the car moved on, and the passengers leaned over the sides (they were summer cars), anxious for the fate of the dog, wolf, look or whatever it may have been. It did not snarl and jump on the front seat. It quietly moved away, went over to the sidewalk and waited—waited just long enough to have the train pass—then it returned to the slot, resumed its air of reflection and stood still. Another train of cars came along. The same programme was gone through.

And so it went all that Sunday evening. The following day every gripman and conductor in the west side cable service was talking about the thing in front of the Title and Trust building. They were on the watch for it Monday night. It did not appear. But on Tuesday evening, about 8 o'clock, it appeared again and went through the same performance as on Sunday evening, disappearing about midnight. It was seen again Wednesday and Friday, and last night at 9 o'clock it resumed its place.

Cable car men are superstitious as much as sailors. They do not like that thing that stands over the slot on Washington street. Some of them say that it is the ghost of some poor creature "killed by the cable."—Chicago Herald.

GEORGE R. MOSHER AT REST.

Buried Under the Auspices of the Organizations of Which he Was a Member An Impressive Service—One of the Largest Funerals Ever Seen in Reno.

Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock the different organizations to which the late George R. Mosher had belonged during his lifetime began to assemble to perform the last sad duty, and tenderly bear him to his peaceful resting place. At the appointed time the Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, fled from their Castle Hall, followed by members of Amity Lodge No. 8, K. of P., who had charge of the burial; then came the representatives and printers of the JOURNAL and GAZETTE offices and others who have been and are now members of the craft, and a large number of the Masonic fraternity. 'Hastings' corner band of twelve pieces headed the column, and with muffled drums the procession marched to the residence and the pallbearers bore poor George to the waiting hearse. From there the procession moved to the Baptist Church, where long before a large congregation of friends had gathered to look for the last time on the face and form of him who always had a kind word and pleasant smile for all who knew him, but, alas, now still in death. Rev. W. B. Pope officiated (and paid a high tribute to the character and worth of the deceased, and the intimate friendship that had existed between the minister and the deceased made it doubly hard for the former to utter the words of consolation to the friends and immediate family of he who lay so still before him. Mr. Pope was deeply affected, and it was with greatest effort that he could control his feelings sufficiently to finish his discourse, and there was not a dry eye in the church. The choir sang a favorite hymn of the deceased, "Nearer My God to Thee," and Mrs. Geuney sang a beautiful solo with so much expression that nearly every head in that large audience was bowed in silent grief. The audience filed out of the church, bidding a last farewell to noble George as they passed his narrow home.

The line was again formed and the band playing a dirge slowly led the long procession to the Knights of Pythias cemetery on the hill, where Sol Levy, as Prelate, very impressively read the beautiful burial service of the Knights of Pythias at the grave, and George was laid to rest.

The floral offerings were beautiful, the largest of which was a set of four pieces from the printers, as a tribute of the love they bore their fellow-workman and companion. One was a large piece representing a "make-up" rule, on which were the words "All In." A representation of an imposing stone, on which rested a chaise of pansies with the form made up and ready for the press, was magnificent in itself. The chaise rested on the imposing stone and was pulled about one-fourth off ready to be lifted to the press. The words, "Last Form Made Up," in blue everlasting flowers appeared in the center. The make-up rule rested on the upper left hand corner of the imposing stone, making this piece about four feet in height. Another piece of the set was the representation of a large clock, the characters and hands on the face being in blue everlasting flowers, on a ground of white roses. The hands pointed to 9:25, the hour at which George died. On the lower part of this piece, under the face of the clock, was the words, "Copy All In." A composing stick at the base of this piece was represented by a border of purple flowers, smilax, maiden hair ferns, surrounding a ground of white roses and lilies. The figures "30" were in blue everlasting flowers in the center, designating that the "last take" had come.

A beautiful wreath, made up of snow balls, pansies, smilax, fern, honeysuckle and other flowers, was presented to the printers by R. Geise.

The Knights of Pythias gave an elegant floral piece, representing a double triangle, emblematic of the Order and the Rank to which George belonged. The colors of the Order, blue, yellow and red, were represented by flowers in each color at the points of the triangle, with the mystic letters "F. C. B." and in the center "K. P."

Edward Puschell, formerly a compositor on the Gazette, but now a resident of Kern county, Cal., sent a large box of cut flowers, and F. A. Mosher, brother of deceased, also sent some choice flowers from San Francisco. The pieces were all very beautiful and composed of white roses, lilies, pansies, jelly flowers, violets, maiden hair ferns and smilax properly and artistically arranged, and were, in fact, the finest floral pieces ever brought to Reno, if not to the State.

George still lives in our hearts and in the memories of all who knew him, and for him "Eternity will be one glorious morning, with sun ever climbing higher and higher; one blessed springtime, and yet richer summer—every plant in full bloom, and every flower but the bud of a lover."

"There is no death."

The dust we tread shall change beneath the summer showers. To golden grain and mellow fruit, or rainbow-tinted flowers.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE ELECTION YESTERDAY.

A Determined and Hotly Contested Fight.

The election yesterday demonstrated the fact that the law providing that school elections shall be held in May instead of at the same time of the general election in November is a failure, insofar at least as it may be supposed to insure a purer election. Yesterday's contest was characterized by much that is worse in machine politics and which certainly cannot be said to be any improvement on the conditions which prevail at the general elections.

Possibly 200 persons voted yesterday who have not been residents of Reno three months.

Every man who voted who could be found, no matter in what condition, and busses ran all day carrying men to the polls. One man voted no less than 125 men in this way.

Had the Australian ballot law been in force fully 100 men would have been unable to vote through the lack of ability to make out their ballots.

Two tickets were in the field, one short ticket with the names of the old Board of Trustees upon it, namely: Wm. Webster for long term and Wm. Pinniger and S. M. Jamison for short term. On part of the short tickets was "To purchase Block K, Pawning Addition, for school purposes at a cost of $5,000—yes." On the remainder of the short tickets the "yes" was substituted by a blank in which the voter could record his preference. The other ticket was entitled "Non-Partisan" and was as follows: "For long term, S. M. Jamison; for short term, H. B. Rule and Col. Nathan Stanley." When the ballots were counted the following result was reached:

S. M. Jamison, long term, 177; H. B. Rule, short term, 349; N. Stanley, short term, 319; Wm. Webster, long term, 312; Wm. Pinniger, short term, 315; S. M. Jamison, short term, 327; W. Webster, short term, 26. On the proposition of buying the Westerfield block the vote stood: Yes, 229; No, 440.

Mr. Jamison received 681 votes and yet was defeated.

A SINGULAR RESULT.

The result of the ballot yesterday affords a chance for a number of peculiar mathematical problems. Jamison's name was on 664 of the ballots that went into the box out of 687, or on every vote save 23, and yet he was defeated. Some of our wisest political figures in town said he could not be beaten, yet he was. Several situations of the ballot can be arrived at among which are the following: He could have been elected to both places, he could have received every ballot and tied, or received every ballot and only been elected to the one office. This is an opportunity for some of our local politicians to study a combination that may be of advantage in the future.

Guaranteed Cure.

We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, upon this condition. If you are afflicted with a Cough, Cold or any Lung, Throat or Chest trouble, and will use this remedy as directed, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We could not make this offer did we not know that Dr. King's New Discovery could be relied on. It never disappoints. Trial bottles free at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store. Large size 50c and $1.

The School Fight at Carson.

Notwithstanding the Republican influence of the State House and the Mint at Carson, the young men and the old men's Republic clubs, the Republican candidates for trustees at that place only received 28 majority. The number of votes cast was 592, of which 310 were straight Republican, electing their entire ticket by the small majority above stated.

Expressions of Gratitude.

Mrs. George R. Mosher desires to tender her heartfelt thanks to the members of the organizations of which her late husband was a member, as well as to all friends who so kindly assisted her in her hour of trouble. Owing to the severe trial she has undergone, it has become necessary for a change, and she takes this method of saying good-bye for a short time, when she hopes to return and personally thank all.

At a select party in Oakland a few days ago, where a prize was offered for the best and most graceful lady dancer, the competitors were finally reduced to three, and it happened that two of them were Miss Estelle Cahn, a former Renoite, and Miss Jennie Lachman, daughter of D. Lachman. The other young lady was from San Francisco. The judges had some trouble in making a selection, but finally decided in favor of the young lady from San Francisco, very much to the displeasure of the large crowd present, who vociferated their objections to the decision by calling out Nevada! Nevada! meaning that Miss Jennie Lachman should have received the prize.

Catarrh

In Its Worst Form

Life Almost a Burden

A Glorious Change Due Solely to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease, and therefore it can only be cured by a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read what it did for Mrs. King, concisely expressed in her own voluntary words:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Gentlemen:—From a grateful heart I write what your grand medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, has done for me. Five bottles cured me of catarrh in its worst form. I think it was only a matter of time, when it would have ended in Bronchial Consumption.'

I can scarcely realize wherein a few months ago life was almost a burden, sick and discouraged, now I am well and happy, gaining flesh and a new being. And all owing to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I will never be without it. Yours gratefully, MRS. CLARK KING, Geneva, Ohio.

NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE

POWHATAN'S TRIBE.
LAST REMNANT EXISTS IN THE PA-MUNKEY INDIANS OF VIRGINIA.

A Town of 800 Acres With 110 Inhabitants.
Proud of Their Lineage, They Accept White Persons as Equals, but Will Have Nothing to Do With Negroes.

How strange it seems that a remnant of the once powerful confederacy of Powhatan should actually exist at this day not so very far from Washington?
This last fragment of a nation, which,
at the time of the landing of Columbus, occupied all of the region hereabout, including a large part of Virginia and Maryland, consists of about 110 individuals. They call themselves the Pamun-keys and dwell at what is known as "In-diantown," which is situated on and comprises the whole of a curiously shaped neck of land extending into Pamunkey river and adjoining King William county, Va., on the south. The "town" consists of 800 acres and is almost entirely surrounded by water, being connected with the mainland by a narrow strip. The comparative safety afforded by the situation in time of war is doubtless accountable for the presence of the tribe in this spot. Very likely their survival is due to the protection thus given.

On the death of Powhatan he was succeeded by Opechancanough, chief of the Pamunkeys. The tribe was at that time the most powerful of the 80 warlike tribes which composed the confederacy.
The entire nation had 2,400 warriors, and comprised about 8,000 individuals.
Of this population 1,000 were of the Pamunkey contingent.

Powhatan was a chief of remarkable valor and judgment. The confederacy organized under the direction of his savage genius was one of the most notable among the many unions of native American tribes. The prominence of this aboriginal nation in the early history of this country is partly due to the fact that Captain John Smith was a writer as well as an explorer. Opechancough himself was a man of unusual ability. His leadership in the massacre of 1622 made him the most dreaded enemy ever encountered by the colonists of that period.

The Pamunkey Indians, whose distinction it is to be the only Virginia tribe that has survived the encroachment of civilization, have excited the interest of the bureau of ethnology, which has issued a bulletin describing them.

Oddly enough, their number has varied hardly at all during the last century. Jefferson, writing in 1781, estimated the population of Indiantown at 100, and How, nearly 70 years later, placed it at the same figure. No member of the tribe is of full blood. While the copper colored skin and the straight, coarse hair of the aboriginal American show decidedly in some individuals, there are others whose origin would not be detected by the ordinary observer.
There has been considerable intermarriage of white blood and not a little of that of the negro, though the laws of the tribe now strictly forbid marriage with persons of African descent.

The Pamunkeys have a great deal of race pride. Though they acknowledge the whites as equals, they consider the blacks far beneath their social level.
Their feeling toward the negro is illustrated by their recent indignant refusal to accept a colored teacher who was sent to them to conduct the free school which the state of Virginia provides for them. They are very anxious to keep their blood free from further mingling with that of other races, and how to accomplish this purpose is a serious problem of theirs, inasmuch as they recognize the danger of too frequent marriages within the pale of consanguinity.
To obviate this difficulty the chief men have been trying to devise a plan by which they may induce immigration from the Cherokees of North Carolina.

The Pamunkey Indians are not particularly strong and robust, perhaps because of frequent marriages between relatives. They are temperate, moral and peaceable. There is good feeling between them and their white neighbors. They are exceedingly proud of their lineage and love to tell how bravely and stubbornly their forefathers resisted the encroachments of the whites.
Opechancanough is their hero. They take great delight in reciting the fam-ilar story of how this noted chief, when old and ill, was carried on a litter to battle that his presence might inspire his men to deeds of bravery. Aside from their mode of subsistence, there is nothing peculiar in their manners and customs unless it be an inclination to excessive use of gaudy colors in their attire. Their homes are comfortable and well kept. They all belong to the Baptist denomination and attend church on the reservation every Sunday.

They obtain their living for the most part in true aboriginal style. Their chief occupations are hunting and fishing, primitive dugout canoes being used.
Farming they do on a small scale, but for manual labor they entertain a truly aboriginal dislike, frequently hiring negroes to attend to their little truck patches. Considerable numbers of raccoons, muskrats, otters and even deer are captured on the reservation. The skins are sold in Richmond and Baltimore as well as many of the fish they catch. They take shad, bass, herring and other fishes in large numbers by means of seines.

In the autumn they hunt reedbirds in a very curious fashion. They have what they call a "sora horse," resembling a peach basket in size and shape and made of strips of iron. Before they had iron clay was utilized as the material. The "horse" is mounted on a pole stuck in the marsh or placed upright in a boat.
At night a fire is kindled inside it. The light attracts the reedbirds, and they fly around it, while the Indians knock them down with paddles. Every year white hunters visit the reservation for the purpose of shooting reedbirds, employing the Pamunkeys as guides.—Washington is not a dye, but a thoroughly cooling and refreshing tonic, by stimulating the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff and grows hair on bald heads. Keep the scalp clean, healthy, and free from irritating eruptions by

AN ARTICHOKE IDYL.
AN UNFAMILIAR VEGETABLE OVER WHICH EPICURES RAVE.

The "Jerusalem" Kind Is Not the True Artichoke and Is Used to Fatten Cattle—Mouth Watering Recipes Used by French and Creole Chefs.

Just 56 years after Columbus discovered America a gastronomic genius in the south of France discovered the artichoke as a delicious dish of a saladic character. It was indeed a rather remarkable find or guess, for the plant bears a strong resemblance to the tis-tle, and up to that date any man who ate it ran the risk of being classed with that animal which enjoys thistles and knows how to bray.

The portion of the artichoke generally eaten is the underside of the head before the flower unfolds itself, or what in kitchen parlance is called the artichoke bottom. But the lower part of the leaves that join this base and contain about a fifth of a teaspoonful of edible and easily digestible substance is equally prized by the wise. A common way of eating these bottoms after the head is removed from the plant and the body has been well boiled, like a cabbage, is to pull off the leaves and then eat the remainder sopped in salt and butter.

But the French and the creoles of New Orleans, where the artichoke is regarded with a kind of sentimental or affectionate appetite, frequently gather the heads when the bottom is no larger than a silver dollar and eat the lower end of the leaves raw, dipping them daintily in a sauce made of oil, red pepper and red wine vinegar or occasionally in a queer sauce of butter and spices.

Another way the French and their kindred here have of embalming the artichoke in the memory of particular stomachs is to bake the dried heads, for which purpose the second crop or rowen of artichokes is preferred, in a meat pie with mushrooms. This dish has not yet made its appearance in New York restaurants.

Neither has the artichoke patty, an invention of the famous Parisian chef, Trisconi, now living in rich retirement on his estate near New Orleans, and cooking only occasionally at state occasions for his guests whose praise delights his poet nature. At a dinner given in 1884 by the New Orleans exposition management to some editorial visitors, Trisconi presented some of these famous patties, and one editor, whose name is a household word, remarked that such a dish could teach a man the art to choke himself to death without grieving, to which another replied that the art to joke in that way was an editorial function more honored in the breach than in the observance, and in an awesome howl the guests went on solacing their souls with patties.

The composition of these culinary wonders is a profound secret, which will probably die with its Columbus, but there are many other ways—about 20 in all—of cooking the artichoke, and some of these methods carry elaboration to excess. Let a brief description of one way suffice.

You take about six or eight plants of medium size, remove the coarsest leaves, trim them off straight on top, cut out the cores or chokes, wash and drain carefully. Then for the time in oil, and for dressing chop up very fine half a pound of fresh pork fat, with the same amount of butter. Add 8 minced shallots, a large spoonful of chopped parsley, salt, pepper, nutmeg, a pound of minced mushrooms and a gill of madeira. After thorough mixing divide into as many portions as you have artichoke shells and fill the hollow plants.

Cover these with bands of thick pork and tie around with strong string. Put these imprisoned artichokes now into a large saucepan, with more pork, chopped carrots, onions, parsley, etc. Moisten with medium stock and white wine and let boil.

Then skin and cook in an oven for an hour. Drain off the stock and reduce it with espagnole to a semiglossed state, sprinkling in just a suspicion of lemon juice now and then. Free the artichokes from their cord and bands and serve them, thinly covered, not drowned, in their accompanying sauce. The name of the dish is artichauts entiere a la bargouise and is equal to a dinner of several courses.

By some persons this dainty vegetable has been confused with the so called Jerusalem artichoke, which is also eaten, though chiefly by cattle. The Jerusalem artichoke is not a true species at all, but of a kind of wild sunflower (hence its Italian name girasole, turning to sun), with a tuberous root that resembles a potato and tastes very like a delicate turnip when well cooked.

This plant is called in some localities the Canada potato, in others the Virginian. It was introduced into England in 1620, and its tops, when cured, were found to be good hay, five or six tons to the acre, and its tuber was fed to cattle.
It is not quite as nourishing as the potato, having 4 per cent more water, but it is very fair eating in spite of the prejudice against it. Once in a soil, it is extremely difficult to extirpate, and it has a curious gift of resisting cold, having never been known to be killed or spoiled by freezing.

It was also introduced in southern Europe at the same time it came to England, and in some places its dried fibers are transmitted into cordage and coarse cloth. It got its odd name, Jerusalem, in English, by a corruption of the Italian name, girasole, just as tomatoes got the name of love apples in French, pommes d'amores, by a French mistake of the Italian name pomi di Mori, apple of the Moors, that vegetable having come to Italy from Morocco traders.

It is a fact worthy of note that artichoke flowers, like rennet, will curdle milk.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Bullet Proof Coats.

Germany will not have a monopoly of bullet proof coats. An Englishman has made a similar article of vegetable fibers from India and Africa, which is used daily at a London music hall, where young women wearing it are fired at by rifle experts with regulation army ammunition. There is no humbug about the performance, and the government is investigating the invention.
